Detroit Transit Strike Ends; CIO Shipbuilders Walkout Is Threatened

Motor City Bus, Trolley Operators Accept Arbitration Plan

NORMAL OPERATIONS WILL RESUME TODAY

Shipbuilders' Union President Files 30-Day Strike Notices

DETROIT, April 7 (AP)—Detroit's week-old transit strike ended today with union acceptance of a proposal to arbitrate the only barrier to settlement.

Approximately 1,600 of the 5,200 striking bus and trolley operators voted at a mass meeting to go back to work. They are members of the Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees of America (AFL).

Andrew Sayed, union business agent, said normal operations would be resumed at 4 a. m. Monday. Some of the operators scheduled to work tonight "will start their runs if they want to," he added.

Sayed estimated that ninety per cent of the operators at the meeting favored accepting the proposal. The strike, which began last Monday morning, had forced some 900,000 persons to drive their own automobiles or hitch rides. The municipally-owned transit system provides the only means of public transportation in the city.

Within a few minutes after the settlement was announced, one street car on Woodward avenue, the city's main thoroughfare, started its run toward the city hall.

Sayed predicted that forty per cent of normal operations would be resumed tonight.

Union leaders and representatives of the city's department of street railways Saturday agreed to the proposal providing for arbitration of "check-out" pay.

The agreement also provides a flat fifteen cents an hour wage increase, compared with the union's original demand for eighteen cents, and a minimum forty-four-hour week at straight time.

Shipbuilders May Strike

CAMDEN, N. J., April 7 (AP)—John Green, international president of the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilders Workers, declared today he was filing strike notices on behalf of 75,000 workers.

Green said he was dispatching formal notice to Secretary of Labor Schwelbensch of intent to strike in thirty days under the Smith-Connally act.

The action affects ten shipyards of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, the Kearny (N. J.) shipyard of the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, a United States Steel subsidiary, and six other independently-owned shipbuilding and repair yards in Baltimore, Bay City, Mich., and Los Angeles harbor.

Frank Plogman, president of Baltimore Local 31, said that his union was not included in the strike notice. His organization represents approximately 3,300 workers employed by the Maryland Drydock Corporation.

Green said the workers will strike because the government has refused to enforce compliance with the eighth-hour shipyard with a wage award in a master agreement to which he said the government was a party.

Cincinnati Faces Power Strike

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Negotiators working to avert a threatened power strike in Ohio said tonight in receiving until tomorrow that employees of the Cincinnati Gas and Electric Company are expected to report for work tomorrow.

In a statement issued after a long day of conferences, representatives of the company and of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said:

"The parties are still in active negotiation. The agreement reached there will be no work stoppage while negotiations continue is still in effect. It is expected therefore that all employees will report for work tomorrow. Negotiations will resume at noon Monday."

The strike of 1,400 AFL electrical workers is set for 4 p. m. Monday. It would affect an area of nearly 1,000,000 persons.

CPA Lifts Restrictions on Some Clothing Frills for the Ladies

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—The government today lifted its ban on some of the clothing frills the ladies have had to go without for three years.

The Civilian Production Administration put its okay on double cuffs, pocket flaps and belts for a number of apparel items.

It also revoked an order which was supposed to prohibit manufacture of so-called "shorty" coats, but which recently had been widely violated, the agency said.

The regulation, effective in April, 1943, when thirty-three-inch coats were the fashion, had limited coat lengths to thirty-three inches to conserve cloth.

Although shorty coats are only about twenty-five inches long, CPA had banned them on the ground that they defeated the purpose of the order, with this reasoning:

"Trade experience has shown that large numbers of women who normally would not buy a new coat

Maryland Will Issue Permanent Auto Tags

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 7 (AP)—Gov. O'Connor announced today that Maryland motorists would be provided with permanent automobile registration plates next year.

He said his decision followed conferences with W. Lee Elgin, commissioner of motor vehicles and Budget Director Walter N. Kirkman.

The governor added that he had approved outlay of present appropriated funds for immediate procurement of the metal necessary for the tags. The plan was decided on several years ago, but the war made aluminum unavailable, he explained.

The new tags will be in duplicate for front and rear of the car and it will only be necessary to stamp out the date plates, O'Connor said.

Price Control Act Free of Crippling Revisions Is Asked

Quick Extension Is Asked by Heads of Five Federal Agencies

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Five top-rank federal agency heads tonight asked quick extension of price control without "crippling" amendments which would leave "a mere illusion of price control."

If wartime powers are retained, a joint report said, the stabilization agencies can save inflationary pressures which now are "many times greater" than after World War I.

"By June 30, 1947, only rent controls and some last remnants of price control in a few isolated fields will remain," they promised—provided Congress renews price ceilings, subsidies, and the Second War Powers act.

"The responsibility for price control rests with Congress," said the report, sent to President Truman to mark tomorrow's third anniversary of the original hold-the-line order.

Nation Is At "Crossroads"

It was signed by Stabilization Director Chester Bowles, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, OPA Administrator Paul Porter, Civilian Production Administration John D. Small, and Wage Stabilization Chairman W. Willard Wirtz.

"This nation stands at a crossroads," the report said. "We believe that one way leads to economic disaster; the other to a future of long-range prosperity. And there is no middle path."

Apparently in reply to some industry charges that the public demand for goods will blow the inflationary lid off unless controls are relaxed, the administration officials observed that the cost of living index has climbed only 3.4 per cent in the past three years despite "staggering pressures."

Some Quality Deterioration

It was conceded that there has been "some deterioration in quality," but bargain sales are a thing of the past and lower priced goods have disappeared in many lines, so that "something must be added to the 3.4 per cent which the statistics show."

There was no estimate of how much to add.

"The question is, are we willing to deal with the present emergency in the same spirit and with the same tools with which we met a similar emergency during the war," the report went on.

"We believe that the Emergency Price Control act which expires on June 30 must be renewed without the crippling amendments which are now being proposed almost daily."

Degree for Truman

LIBERTY, Mo., April 7 (AP)—President Truman will fly here May 20 to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree at the ninety-seventh commencement of William Jewell college, Dr. Walter Pope Binns, president of the college, announced today.

inject a heavy demand into the market when manufacturers promote new style trends which make existing apparel unfashionable."

But the agency said it would be "unrealistic" to continue the ban on shorty coats "at a time when such clothing supplies are extremely tight."

What happens to producers who violated the order CPA said it may take compliance action "against manufacturers who made and sold the coats at a time when such action was clearly prohibited."

In lifting restrictions on frills, CPA said so-called French or double cuffs may be used again on women's dresses, blouses, coats, and neckwear. And its all right to put decorative items as well as on a number of other garments for women and children.

Belts and belt loops will be permitted on women's and children's skirts and slacks.

Thomas Cook To Enter Gubernatorial Primary

FREDERICK, Md., April 7 (AP)—Thomas E. Cook, who received the most votes of the three candidates campaigning against Gov. O'Connor in the 1942 Democratic gubernatorial primary, announced today he would run again in the Democratic primary for the gubernatorial nomination.

A 52-year-old chemical manufacturer, Cook announced his platform would ask preference for qualified veterans in all state jobs "to displace the ever-present political office-holder."

He said his platform also included a $3 automobile tax, $50 a week for every family breadwinner, and greater interest by the state in the problems of farmers.

He added that he would seek to have teachers paid on a twelve-month instead of ten-month basis per year.

Several critics of the administration, however, also declining to be quoted by name, asserted that both the president and his legislative program will take a beating in the months ahead.

U.S. MPs Check Jap Left-Wing Demonstration

Premier Agrees To Hear Crowd's Demand for His Resignation

TOKYO, Monday, April 8 (AP)—American troops in armored cars and jeeps mounting machine guns quieted 10,000 left-wing Japanese who stoned Premier Shidehara's official residence, and the premier agreed to hear officially this afternoon the crowd's riotously shouted demand for the resignation of his government.

Eight Japanese police were hospitalized and windows of the premier's residence were smashed as the crowd surged into the premier's courtyard yesterday, but arrival of United States military police checked the demonstration without resistance.

At a mass meeting which preceded the march on Shidehara's residence, one demonstrator shouted for a quick, nationwide general strike "to overthrow an undemocratic government," but Communist Leader Sanni Nosaka replied that such a weapon "requires caution."

"We should utilize this great power, but we should not use it lightly," he asserted.

Some Japanese newspapers reported attendance at the mass meeting was nearly 70,000. Fifteen thousand appeared a more reliable estimate.

Premier Shidehara's secretary, Kuramatsu Kishi, later told the Associated Press that "it is very regretful that the people, led by irresponsible representatives who could not maintain order," staged the demonstration. "It is a very sad thing for new Japan."

Shidehara, it was learned, is scheduled to meet a committee of thirteen from the demonstrating "People's Political Front" this afternoon to hear their demand for the immediate resignation of himself and his cabinet.

The demonstration was a new sharp note in Japan's previously dull campaign for the April 10 election. The newspaper Yomiuri Hochi, which demonstrated left-wing leanings recently, used half its front page today to describe the demonstration as "the people's grand offensive."

as the crowd swept into Shidehara's courtyard, and Secretary Kishi said six others were injured.

Even after the last unresisting demonstrator had been herded from the premier's walled courtyard, the throng milled outside, waving banners and yelling.

Speakers clamored to the top of the wall, in defiance of the 300 Japanese police arrayed inside the courtyard, and cried once more for the overthrow of Shidehara and his cabinet.

Gen. Hugh Hoffman, of the United States Seventh Cavalry division, said that the MPs would not intervene again unless the crowd became unruly once more. The people began to disperse at dusk.

To bring army pay into line with civilian salaries, the War department is pressing Congress now for a straight twenty per cent increase for all ranks.

The department has endorsed legislation which would pay enlisted men, like officers, a lump sum in cash for unused accumulated leave time, when they quit the service. The budget bureau, however, balked at the estimated cost of several billions to make such terminal leave pay retroactive.

The Doolittle board finished its hearings Thursday. Its report, to be submitted next month, is expected to confront the War department policymakers with recommendations for further reforms to make the peacetime army more democratic.

Comptroller Aspirant

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 7 (AP)—Edwin D. Hook, local insurance man, has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for state comptroller. He said that in the 1942 election the Republicans had no candidate for comptroller. He is not aligned with any candidate for governor, Hook stated.

Poll Tax Remark Is Taken To Mean Truman Won't Run

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Clark Foreman, Atlanta, Ga., said in a speech here today that he interprets President Truman's poll tax comments in Chicago yesterday as meaning the president has lost hope for his legislative program and will not seek re-election in 1948.

Mr. Truman said yesterday at his teen-age news conference that the southern states must work out poll tax problems for themselves.

Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for human welfare, presiding at this morning's session of a three-day "Win the Peace" conference, said the Truman "D-F-A" expects to bring it up for floor action in the near future.

Foreman recalled that Mr. Truman voted for poll tax repeal as a senator and said he had been expected to back its passage now. For him to make such a statement at this particular time, Foreman said, "can only mean he does not intend to run in 1948 because he can't get any of his program through Congress as long as poll taxers dominate both houses. x x x He must have finally made up his mind he is a failure, cannot be president and will not run for re-election," the speaker said.

Administration leaders asserted today they are not overly disturbed by the record thus far. They hope to push through many of the presidential recommendations between now and the summer recess. With the stipulation that they not be identified, several of these legislative proposals acknowledged freely to newsmen that some concessions will have to be made, but maintained that the "real" legislation will get through.

Several critics of the administration, however, also declining to be quoted by name, asserted that both the president and his legislative program will take a beating in the months ahead.

Here's the record to date:

Army Chiefs May Probe of Pearl Back Gripe Board Harbor Attack Recommendations To Be Resumed

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Secretary of War Patterson and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower were represented by associates today as inclined to go along with any recommendations by the Doolittle Gripe board which promise to correct army abuses and make military life more attractive.

They already have acted to answer in advance a number of the principal complaints heard by the "officers' caste" inquiry board headed by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle.

An announcement that the army air force contemplates relieving enlisted men of potato peeling and other kitchen police duty is the latest of a series of official actions aimed in that direction.

By the new order, army officers and men will wear the same uniforms, except for identifying insignia, after mid-1948.

A group of civilian lawyers will start Tuesday to overhaul army courts-martial procedure, with an eye to the contention that military justice has been more severe with men in the ranks than with officers.

To bring army pay into line with civilian salaries, the War department is pressing Congress now for a straight twenty per cent increase for all ranks.

The department has endorsed legislation which would pay enlisted men, like officers, a lump sum in cash for unused accumulated leave time, when they quit the service. The budget bureau, however, balked at the estimated cost of several billions to make such terminal leave pay retroactive.

Yale Towne Workers Ratify New Contract

PHILADELPHIA, April 7 (AP)—Employees of the Philadelphia plant of Yale and Towne Manufacturing Company ratified a union-management contract today ending a 149-day walkout.

In a closed session, more than 500 of the 1,700 striking members of the International Association of Machinists (AFL) approved terms of a new contract approved last week by negotiators.

A wage increase of twelve and one-half cents an hour was among the provisions of the new pact.

Former Partner Strikes Sen. Mead In Hotel Affray

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 7 (AP)—A man identified by police as Edward D. O'Dea, former business partner of United States Sen. James M. Mead (D-N.Y.), was charged today with disorderly conduct following an affray in a crowded hotel lobby last night during which Mead was struck in the mouth.

The incident occurred in the Hotel Statler shortly after Mead had left Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who, with the senator, had just addressed the annual Grover Cleveland dinner of the Erie County Democratic committee.

Police Detective John Green, assigned to guard the senator at the dinner told the following story:

Mead, in endeavoring to break away from a crowd of wellwishers assembled outside the ballroom entrance, walked with the detective through a section of the lobby where there were several chairs and sofas. O'Dea was sitting in one of the chairs and as Mead approached he rose suddenly and struck him in the mouth with his fist. The detective subdued the man and took him to a nearby office to await a police car, which took him to the police station.

Persons in the lobby said the incident occurred so suddenly many did not know of it, but reports, some of them exaggerated, spread rapidly throughout the crowd.

Ascleas said Mead suffered a cut lip and lost a tooth, but later reports said he suffered only a cut lip.

Spectator Is Killed After Fatal Car Crash

BALTIMORE, April 7 (AP)—Mrs. Ethel K. Watts, 17, Fullerton, Baltimore county, was killed in an automobile crash today on the York road where shortly afterward an 18-year-old spectator of the accident was himself hit and fatally injured by another car.

The second victim was identified by police as Stanley R. Cape, Towson.

Patrolmen Arthur Plummer and Henry Emerson said the collision in the first tragedy occurred when Calvin G. Watts, husband of the dead woman, failed to stop for a boulevard sign at York road.

The other automobile, the patrolmen reported, was driven by Edgar H. Alban, Baltimore.

Loan to Britain Faces Its Initial Test in Congress

Senate Banking Committee Approval This Week Is Expected

By SIGRID ARNE

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—This week the British loan is expected to take its first congressional hurdle and get a go-ahead from the Senate Banking committee.

The next step after that is Senate debate, perhaps two weeks hence. All indications point to a flood of old-fashioned oratory, well interlarded with vigorous twists of the British lion's tail.

Probably concurrently, the House Banking committee will take up the loan, and later it will pass to the House debate.

The loan would set up $3,750,000,000 in credits for the United Kingdom here, to be repaid by the year 2001 at two per cent interest. It is tied to a British agreement to discuss world trade rules with the idea of melting down United States tariff walls and dissolving proportionately the British "empire preference system" which United States traders think has cut them out of wide portions of world market.

Party Lines Are Out

Sporadic speeches in both the Senate and House have delineated the argument ahead. Some congressional leaders will want to know the financial facts of life. Some will take a wide sweep at British empire policy to which they fear the United States would be tied by the loan.

The preliminary debates have cut well across party lines with Republicans siding with the administration, and the other way round.

The loan is such a top-drawer matter with the administration that leaders from President Truman down have urged its adoption.

Their argument in general is this: The United Kingdom (which was the best prewar customer of the United States) must be drawn quickly back into world trade or the trading block will break up into three world blocs—the British area, the American, and the Russian, which might lead to war.

Ability To Repay Is Questioned

The loan would help the United Kingdom to buy here during the period when she is not manufacturing and selling enough to pay for what she buys.

The United Kingdom has an alternative, if the loan fails, that would be harmful to the United States selling abroad; she could continue the "empire preference system" which makes it cheaper for her to buy in London than in the United States and thereby loses to American sellers much of such markets as Australia, Egypt and India.

Opponents question Britain's willingness and ability to repay the loan, and argue that it will be an ever-heavy burden on American taxpayers already saddled with a $300,000,000,000 debt.

Boy's "Relic" Turns Out To Be Skull Of Father

CASEVILLE, Ill., April 7 (AP)—Coroner C. C. Kane said today that a bullet-pierced skull found last winter by Clifford Lutz, 12, and kept in his home since in the belief it was an Indian relic, "undoubtedly" was that of his father, who disappeared last May 6.

The skull was determined to be Lutz's, Kane said, after the rest of a human skeleton was found Saturday by a neighbor who was hunting mushrooms at the home near here. Identification has made through clothing and a .38 caliber revolver found among the bones.

Iranian Premier Reveals Details Of Russian Pact

TEHRAN, April 7 (AP)—Premier Ahmad Qavam told Iranian newsmen today that Russia would have control of the proposed Soviet-Iranian oil company for the first twenty-five years under the terms of the agreement to be presented to the Iranian Parliament for approval.

Giving additional details of the proposal, disclosed for the first time in the Iranian-Soviet communique of last Friday, Qavam was quoted by the Iranian newsmen as saying: "The time of the company's existence will be fifty years, during the first half of which Russia will control fifty per cent of the shares and Persia forty-nine."

The newspaper Eteelaat said that the premier's statement indicated control would then shift to Persia with fifty-one per cent of the stock.

Qavam was quoted further as saying that "all exploring expenses will be borne by the Russians," and that "Persia will retain all rights to the ground."

He added that the oil agreement was not secret and that a copy of the entire text would be published "shortly."

Qavam also said that he had requested the "people of Azerbaijan" to send representatives to Tehran for negotiations. The communique Friday said solution of the problem in Azerbaijan, where an autonomous regime has been set up in defiance of the central government, had been recognized as an "international" one for Iran to handle.

Opponents question Britain's willingness and ability to repay the loan, and argue that it will be an ever-heavy burden on American taxpayers already saddled with a $300,000,000,000 debt.

Price Control Act Free of Crippling Revisions Is Asked

Quick Extension Is Asked by Heads of Five Federal Agencies

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Five top-rank federal agency heads tonight asked quick extension of price control without "crippling" amendments which would leave "a mere illusion of price control."

If wartime powers are retained, the joint report said, the stabilization agencies can subdue inflationary pressures which now are "many times greater" than after World War.

"By June 30, 1947, only rent controls and some last remnants of price control in a few isolated fields will remain," they promised—provided Congress renews price ceilings, subsidies, and the Second War Powers act.

"The responsibility for price control rests entirely with Congress," said the report, sent to President Truman to mark tomorrow's third anniversary of the original hold-the-line order.

Nation Is At "Crossroads" It was signed by Stabilization Director Chester Bowles, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, OPA Administrator Paul Porter, Civilian Production Administration John D. Small, and War Relocation Authority Chairman W. Willard Wirtz.

"This nation stands at a crossroads," the report said. "We believe that one way leads to economic disaster; the other to a future of long-range prosperity. And there is no middle path."

Apparently in reply to some industry charges that the public demand for goods will blow the inflationary lid off unless controls are relaxed, the administration officials observed that the cost of living index has climbed only 3.4 per cent in the last three years despite "staggering pressures."

Some Quality Deterioration It was conceded that there has been "some deterioration in quality," but lower prices have been paid for goods of the past and lower prices goods have disappeared in many lines, so that "something must be added to the 3.4 per cent which the statistics show." There was no estimate of how much to add.

"The question is, are we willing to deal with the present emergency in the same spirit and with the same degree with which we met a similar emergency during the war," the report went on.

"We believe that the Emergency Price Control act which expires on June 30 must be renewed without the crippling amendments which now being proposed almost daily."

LIBERTY, Mo., April 7.—(AP)—President Truman will fly here May 20 to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Missouri.

TOKYO, Monday, April 8.—(AP)—American troops in armored cars and jeeps mounting machine guns quieted 10,000 left-wing Japanese who stoned Premier Shidehara's official residence, and the premier agreed to hear officially this afternoon the crowd's riotously shouted demand for the resignation of his government.

Eight Japanese police were hospitalized and windows of the premier's residence were smashed as the crowd surged into the premier's courtyard yesterday, but arrival of United States military police checked the demonstration without resistance.

At a mass meeting which preceded the march on Shidehara's residence, one demonstrator shouted for a quick, nationwide general strike "to overthrow an undemocratic government," but Communist Leader Sanni Nosaka replied that such a weapon "requires caution."

Outbreak Is Deplored "We should utilize this great power, but we should not use it lightly," he asserted.

Some Japanese newspapers reported attendance peaked at the mass meeting was nearly 70,000. Fifteen thousand appeared a more reliable estimate.

Premier Shidehara's secretary, Kuramatsu Kishi, later told the Associated Press that "it is very regrettable that the demonstrators were irresponsible representatives who could not maintain order," staged the demonstration. "It is a very sad thing for new Japan."

Shidehara, it was learned, is scheduled to meet a committee of thirteen from the outside, the "People's Political Front" this afternoon to hear their demand for his immediate resignation of himself and his cabinet.

The demonstration was a new sharp note in Japan's previously dull campaign for the April 10 election. The newspaper Yomiuri Hochi, which demonstrated left-wing leanings recently, used half its front page today to describe the demonstration as "the people's grand offensive."

Two Police Are Beaten The Japanese police were beaten as the crowd swept into Shidehara's courtyard, and Secretary Kishi said six others were injured.

Even after the last unresisting demonstrator had been herded from the premier's walled courtyard, the strong millicent, waving banners and yelling.

Speakers clambered to the top of the wall, in defiance of the 300 Japanese police arrayed inside the courtyard, and cried once more for the overthrow of Shidehara and his cabinet.

Brig. Gen. Hugh Hoffman, of the United States Seventh Cavalry division, said that the MPs would not intervene again unless the crowd became unruly once more. The people began to disperse at dusk.

Poll Tax Remark Is Taken To Mean Truman Won't Run

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Clark Foreman, Atlanta, Ga., said in a speech here today that he intended to campaign against the poll tax comments in Chicago yesterday as meaning the president has lost hope for his legislative program and will not seek re-election in 1948.

Mr. Truman said yesterday at his teen-age news conference that the southern states must work out poll tax problems for themselves.

Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for human welfare, presiding at his morning's session of a three-day "Win the Peace" conference, said the Truman remark indicated a most significant reversal of presidential policy.

He said a federal poll tax repeal bill has been passed three times by the House and approved by a Senate committee, and that Sen. Pepper (D-La.) expects to bring it up for floor action in the near future.

Foreman recalled that Mr. Truman voted for poll tax repeal as a senator and said he had been expected to back its passage now. For him to make such a statement at this particular time, Foreman said, "can only mean he does not intend to run in 1948 because he can't get any of his program through Congress as long as poll taxes dominate both houses. x x x He must have finally made up his mind he is a failure, cannot be president and will not run for re-election," the speaker said.

Thomas Cook To Enter Gubernatorial Primary

FREDERICK, Md., April 7.—(AP)—Thomas E. Cook, who received the most votes of the three candidates campaigning against Gov. O'Connor in the 1942 Democratic gubernatorial primary, announced today that he would run again in the Democratic primary for the gubernatorial nomination.

A 52-year-old chemical manufacturer, Cook announced his platform would ask preference for qualified veterans in all state jobs "to displace the ever-present political office-holder."

He said his platform also included a $3 automobile tax, $50 a week for every family breadwinner, and greater interest by the state in the problems of farmers. He added that he would seek to have teachers paid on a twelve-month instead of ten-month basis per year.

Army Chiefs May Probe of Pearl Harbor Attack Recommendations To Be Resumed

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Secretary of War Patterson and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower were represented by associates today as inclined to go along with any recommendations by the Doolittle Gribe board which promise to correct army abuses and make military life more attractive.

They already have acted to answer in advance a number of the principal complaints heard by the "officers' caste" inquiry board headed by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle.

An announcement that the army air forces contemplated relieving enlisted men of potato peeling and other kitchen police duty is the latest of a series of official actions aimed in that direction.

By the new order, army officers and men will wear the same uniforms, except for identifying insignia, after mid-1948.

A group of civilian lawyers will start court-martial procedure, with an eye to the contention that military justice has been more severe with men in the ranks than with officers.

To bring army pay into line with civilian salaries, the War department is pressing Congress now for a straight twenty per cent increase for all ranks.

The department has endorsed legislation which would pay enlisted men, like officers, a lump sum in cash for unused accumulated leave time, when they quit the service. The budget bureau, however, balked at the estimated cost of several billions to make such a universal leave pay retroactive.

The Doolittle board finished its hearings Thursday. Its report, to be submitted next month, is expected to confront the War department policymakers with recommendations for further reforms to make the peacetime army more democratic.

Comptroller Aspirant

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 7.—(AP)—Edwin D. Hook, local insurance man, has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for state comptroller. He said that in the 1942 election the Republicans had no candidate for comptroller. He is not aligned with any candidate for governor, Hook said.

Truman To End First Year in White House with Long Record of Rebuffs

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—President Truman winds up his first year as chief executive this week with a record of repeated rebuffs from the congress in which he once served.

Since he succeeded the late President Roosevelt on April 12, 1945, Mr. Truman has made more than twenty-five major proposals, of which only ten have been approved.

Of the ten, half have passed in nearly the form he asked, but the other half were revised to include sections which the president opposed.

Administration leaders asserted today they are not overly disturbed by the record thus far. They hope to push through many of the presidential recommendations between now and the summer recess. With the stipulation that they not be identified, several of these legislative proposals acknowledged freely to newsmen that some concessions will have to be made, but maintained that the "must" legislation will get through.

Several critics of the administration, however, also declining to be quoted by name, asserted that both the president and his legislative program will take a beating in the months ahead.

Here's the record to date: Passed as asked—(1) One man administrator for surplus property; (2) Funds for UNRRA; (3) ships sale formula; (4) United Nations participation; and (5) Bretton Woods monetary program.

Passed, but sharply revised—(1) An employment planning program; (2) government reorganization; (3) return of employment service to states a year earlier than requested; (4) retention of war powers; and (5) lower taxes.

Still pending—(1) Emergency housing—House passed minus two items Mr. Truman termed "heart" of program. Senate still to act.

(2) Draft continuation—Action expected this week, but strong support reported for proposals to limit time and those who may be drafted.

Probe of Pearl Harbor Attack Recommendations To Be Resumed

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—Republicans will seek more light on what happened at the White House on the night of December 6, 1941, when the Senate-House Pearl Harbor investigating committee resumed hearings Tuesday.

Sens. Ferguson (R-Mich.) and Brewster (R-Maine), recalling testimony that Mr. Roosevelt decided that evening that Japan had cast the die for war, told reporters they want to find out what action, if any, the chief executive took after reaching that conclusion.

Their questions will be directed to Adm. John R. Beardsall, who was naval aide to Mr. Roosevelt, and Adm. Harold R. Stark, 1941 chief of naval operations. Gen. George C. Marshall, former army chief of staff, may be recalled.

Ferguson said he wanted to "follow through on the Schulz story." Comdr. Lester S. Schulz testified last February 16 that he took intercepted Japanese messages to the president on December 6 and Mr. Roosevelt, after reading them, exclaimed, "This means war."

He said the president attempted then to telephone Stark and said he would get in touch with Stark when told the naval officer was at the theater. Schulz said he telephoned Beardsall and told him the messages had been delivered to the president.

When Stark testified early in the committee's hearings, he said he had no recollection of where he was the evening of December 6 nor of seeing the messages which were shown to the president.

Loan to Britain Faces Its Initial Test in Congress

Senate Banking Committee Approval This Week Is Expected

By SIGRID ARNE

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(AP)—This week the British loan is expected to take its first congressional hurdle and get a go-ahead from the Senate Banking committee.

The next step after that is Senate debate, perhaps two weeks hence. All indications point to a flood of old-fashioned oratory, well interlarded with vigorous twists of the British lion's tail.

Probably concurrently, the House Banking committee will take up the loan, and later it will pass to the House.

The loan would set up $3,750,000,000 in credits for the United Kingdom here, to be repaid by the year 2001 at two per cent interest. It is tied to a British agreement to discuss world trade rules with the idea of melting down United States tariff walls and dissolving proportionately the British "empire preference system" which United States traders think has cut them out of wide portions of world markets.

Party Lines Are Out

Sporadic speeches in both the Senate and House have delineated the argument ahead. Some congressional leaders will want to know the financial facts of life. Some will take a wide sweep at British empire policy to which they fear the United States would be tied by the loan.

The preliminary debates have cut well across party lines with Republicans siding with the administration, and the other way round.

The loan is such a top-drawer matter with the administration that leaders from President Truman down have urged its adoption.

An argument in general is this: The United Kingdom (which was the best pre-war customer of the United States) must be drawn quickly back into world trade or the world will break up into three world trading blocs; the British area, the American, and the Russian, which would not only cut profits, but might lead to war.

Ability To Repay Is Questioned

The loan would help the United Kingdom to buy here during the period when she is not manufacturing and selling enough to pay for what she buys.

The United Kingdom has an alternative, if the loan fails, that would be harmful to the United States selling abroad; she could continue the "empire preference system" which makes it cheaper for the empire to buy in London than in the United States and thereby in American sellers much of such markets as Australia, Egypt and India.

Opponents question Britain's willingness and ability to repay the loan, and argue that it will be an over-heavy burden on American taxpayers already saddled with a $300,000,000,000 debt.

Former Partner Strikes Sen. Mead In Hotel Affray

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 7.—(AP)—A man identified by police as Edward D. O'Dea, 59, former business partner of United States Sen. James M. Mead (D-N.Y.), was charged today with disorderly conduct following an affray in a crowded hotel lobby last night during which Mead was struck in the mouth.

The incident occurred in the Hotel Statler shortly after Mead had left Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who, with the senator, had just addressed the annual Grover Cleveland dinner of the Erie County Democratic committee.

Police Detective John Green, assigned to guard the senator at the dinner told the following story:

Mead, in endeavoring to break away from a crowd of well-wishers assembled outside the ballroom entrance, walked with the detective through a section of the lobby where there were several chairs and sofas. O'Dea was sitting in one of the chairs and as Mead approached he rose suddenly and struck him in the mouth with his fist.

The detective subdued the man and took him to a nearby office to await a police van which took him to the police station.

Persons in the lobby said the incident occurred so suddenly many did not know of it, but reports, some of them exaggerated, spread rapidly throughout the crowd.

Associates said Mead suffered a cut lip and lost a tooth, but later reports said he suffered only a cut lip.

Patrolmen Arthur Plummer and Henry Emerson said the collision in the first tragedy occurred when Calvin G. Watts, husband of the dead woman, failed to stop for a boulevard sign at York road.

The skull was determined to be Lutz's, Kane said, after the rest of a human skeleton was found Saturday by a neighbor who was hunting mushrooms a short distance from the Lutz home near here. Identification has made through clothing and a .38 caliber revolver found among the bones.

Iranian Premier Reveals Details Of Russian Pact

Soviet Will Control Proposed Oil Company for First 25 Years

By JOSEPH C. GOODWIN

TEHRAN, April 7.—(AP)—Premier Ahmed Qavam told Iranian newsmen today that Russia would have control of the proposed Soviet-Iranian oil company for the first twenty-five years under the terms of the agreement to be presented to the Iranian Parliament for approval.

Giving additional details of the proposal, disclosed for the first time in the Iranian-Soviet communiqué of last Friday, Qavam was quoted by the Iranian newsmen as saying:

"The time of the company's existence will be fifty years, during the first half of which Russia will control fifty-one per cent of the shares and Persia forty-nine."

The newspaper Ettelaat said that the premier's statement indicated control would then shift to Persia with fifty-one per cent of the stock. Qavam was quoted further as saying that "all exploring expenses will be borne by the Russians," and that they "will retain all rights to the ground."

He added that the oil agreement was not secret and that a copy of the entire text would be published "shortly."

Qavam also said that he had requested the "people of Azerbaijan" to send representatives to Tehran for negotiations. The communiqué Friday said solution of the problem in Azerbaijan, where an autonomous regime has been set up in defiance of the central government, had been recognized as an "internal" one for Iran to handle.

Tydings Says Price Controls Are Needed

BALTIMORE, April 7.—(AP)—Sen. Tydings (D-Md.) said today it is "safe to predict" that by next January "most of the articles now covered will have been removed from OPA control."

Speaking over station WBAL, the senator said OPA would be "an unnecessary source of controversy during his life," but while Congress is anxious to abolish the agency, it appears to feel "that we will have to put up with price control or something a while longer," until industries start to produce in volume goods of which there are now shortages.

Mansion where Roosevelt Was Born To Become National Shrine Friday

By ALLAN FISHER

HYDE PARK, N. Y., April 7.—(AP)—The stone and stucco mansion where Franklin D. Roosevelt was born and the century-old rose garden in which he is buried yield their quiet solitude on Friday when they become a national shrine.

President Truman and others attending the ceremony, which commemorates the first anniversary of Mr. Roosevelt's death, will find the Department of Interior specialists have restored the house in the most minute detail to its appearance in 1940.

George A. Palmer, superintendent of the estate for the Interior department, said a small group of aides have worked several months in comparative isolation to restore the interior of the house in accordance with photographs taken by the department and approved by Mr. Roosevelt.

When visitors arrive Friday they will find the house well-groomed lawns, newly-planted flowers and shrubbery, fresh green walks and a spring carpet of green myrtle and pachysandra on the Roosevelt grave.

The public will not be admitted to the house on Friday but will thereafter. Friday, the house will be open only to the 700 guests of Interior Secretary J. A. Krug, who has issued formal invitations to chiefs of all foreign "missions" in Washington.

"Illegal" To Keep Issue on Docket, Gromyko Tells U. N. Agency

AGREEMENT "SOLVED" EVACUATION QUESTION

Implied Threat of Continued Russian Boycott of Council Arises

LONDON, April 7.—(AP)—Russia demanded tonight that the United Nations Security Council was its own completely of the Soviet-Iranian question because the question of evacuation of Soviet troops was "solved" by an agreement between Russia and Iran.

The Moscow radio, in a broadcast heard here, announced that Andrei Gromyko, Soviet member of the Security Council, told the council in a letter that it is "not right and is illegal and is contrary to the Charter of the United Nations Organization" for the issue to be kept on the agenda.

The letter, dated April 6, said Russia "insists the issue 'must be dropped' despite the council's decision to discuss it again on May 6, the date on which Russia undertook to have all her troops out of Iran 'unconditionally.'"

"There is no reason to leave the Iranian question before the Security Council for any further discussion," the broadcast quoted Gromyko's letter, which also denied there was anything in the present relations of the two countries endangering international peace or security.

Husband May Be Critical and Yet Love Wife Deeply

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Just why the people who supposedly love us best should so often find so much in us to criticize, seems something of a mystery when you first think about it.

For presumably, as the writer of the following letter says, "If you love someone I think you should naturally love their looks, their personality, etc." Yet, as this writer has found, to her sorrow and bewilderment, this does not by any means follow.

Here is her problem:

"I am very much in love with my husband, and he tells me he loves me. However, he tells me I'm not good-looking, and that I do not have a pleasant personality. Furthermore, he tells me I do not have good figure. He constantly admires other girls and brings out their good characteristics, but he never sees anything worth admiring in me. This may not sound like a serious problem, but it is to me, because I am developing an inferiority complex.

Even if it breaks my heart, should I divorce him and marry someone who appreciates me? Do you think he could possibly love me? Do you think our marriage has a chance of survival?"

"MUCH WORRIED WIFE"

Certainly, "Much Worried Wife," I think it is entirely possible that your husband loves you. And certainly I think your marriage has a chance of survival.

Let's think about some of the reasons that may make a husband critical of his wife, even though he really loves her.

In the first place, every man wants his wife to be as near perfect as he can possibly achieve, not only because he loves and is proud of her, and so wants her to appear, on every occasion, to the best possible advantage, but also he feels, consciously or subconsciously, that her perfection, or lack of it, reflects on him in the eyes of others. The more beautiful and charming she is, the more he feels others envy him as the possessor of such a desirable creature, and that sets him up on end. While if he thinks his wife does not measure up to other women in looks or personality, then he feels others look down on him and that makes him feel awful. So either way, many a husband keeps trying to jank his wife up to his own particular idea of what she ought to be, so that she will be the admiration of all, and he can bask in her reflected glory.

Or again, perhaps he fights a constant battle with a feeling of inferiority in himself, and so does not want to think his wife may have more charm and better looks than he has. So he picks flaws in her and makes odious comparisons with other women in order to persuade himself that she has nothing on him!

Then, too, sometimes these nagging criticisms may have a little something on their side. Perhaps the wife actually isn't making the most of her looks, and may not be doing her best to cultivate the friends and interests that will make her an entertaining companion.

So "Much Worried Wife," before I made up my mind to divorce my husband and marry someone else, I'd certainly make one whole of an effort to see if I couldn't locate the trouble and do something about it. Instead of brooding, and feeling unappreciated and inferior, I'd ask myself if I really had been making the most of myself as a person and I'd give myself an honest answer. And if I hadn't been, I'd get busy and begin.

And if I suspected that an inferiority complex might be my husband's difficulty, I'd start a campaign of building himself up in his own eyes. I'd keep calling attention to all his good points and qualities—until he began to feel as well as really that a fellow I'd be willing to let quite if you do this, you'll soon find him reciprocating and doing his best to make you feel quite a girl!

Anyway, what have you got to lose by trying?

Abdominal Pains In Child Signal Need for Doctor

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Causes of abdominal pain in children are many and varied. At one time, such pain may be due to nothing more serious than a little digestive upset. Again, it may signal the onset of appendicitis. Another common cause, according to Dr. Ian Aird, Edinburgh, Scotland, is an inflammation of certain lymph glands within the abdomen, known as the mesenteric lymph glands.

To an untrained observer, one of these troubles might appear outwardly very much like another. To treat one for another, however, would be disastrous. Therefore, parents are warned that in cases of abdominal pain in children, a physician should be called.

In mesenteric lymphadenitis, the lymph glands become inflamed at first, then white and soft and, finally, hard and red. There is also some congestion of blood in the small intestine and occasionally in the appendix. The entire bowel wall may become swollen or edematous. A sore throat or similar infection may precede the attack of mesenteric lymphadenitis.

The most important symptom of mesenteric lymphadenitis, is severe colicky pain. The pain comes in spasms, and between spasms the child is comfortable but even during a violent attack, may move about freely. The pain is most severe in the lower right part of the abdomen. Sickness to the stomach and vomiting frequently occur.

The temperature rises to about 101 degrees, and there is also an increase in the number of white cells in the blood. There is often some rigidity or stiffness of the muscles, but this is not as noticeable as in appendicitis. The character of the pain also seems to differ from that produced by appendicitis, so that the two disorders can usually be told apart.

A tuberculous infection of the lymph glands in the abdomen may also occur. However, in tuberculosis, there is usually no increase in the number of white cells in the blood. The abdominal muscles are relaxed and pain and discomfort persist between attacks.

Children with mesenteric lymphadenitis, as a rule, are apparently healthy and completely comfortable between attacks.

Dr. Aird believes that mesenteric lymphadenitis may be due to a virus, that is, an organism so small that it can pass through the openings in a porcelain filter. The virus is brought to the glands by passing through the walls of the intestine into the lymph channels.

The fact that a respiratory infection, such as a cold or sore throat, often precedes the attack, favors the theory that the condition is produced by a virus, since these children are not grateful to be caused by viruses.

No treatment has been found which will keep the attacks from recurring. However, operation and removal of the gland should not be done, as time passes, the condition tends to clear up completely and no further attacks occur.

The important thing is that its symptoms are like those of appendicitis and care must be taken not to mistake one for the other. The parents must remember two important things: Have a physician examine your child, and give no laxative or cathartics.

There was a direct action boy who never allowed a nagging wife to trouble him long. Just liquidated her—promptly—and stuffed her remains in a closet which he forbade his future mates to investigate. Nice, tidy practice! It certainly discouraged debates.

Yet I really believe there should be a Bluebeard closet in every home. No, I'm not advocating the mass murder of inquisitive ladies. But I certainly think that privacy and respect for the same are imperative in married life and would save many a union from going on the rocks.

Husband May Be Critical and Yet Love Wife Deeply

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Just why the people who supposedly love us best should so often find so much in us to criticize, seems something of a mystery when you first think about it.

For presumably, as the writer of this column says, "If you love someone, I think you would naturally love their looks, their personality, etc." Yet, as this writer has found, to her sorrow and bewilderment, this does not by any means follow.

Here is her problem:

"I am very much in love with my husband, and he tells me he loves me. However, he tells me I'm not good-looking, and that I do not have a pleasant personality. Furthermore, he tells me I do not have a good figure. He constantly admires other girls and brings out their good characteristics, but he never says anything worth admiring in me. This may not sound like a serious problem, but it is to me, because I am developing an inferiority complex."

"Even if it breaks my heart, should I divorce him and marry someone who appreciates me? Do you think he could possibly love me? Do you think our marriage has a chance of survival?"

"MUCH WORRIED WIFE"

Certainly "Much Worried Wife." I think it is entirely possible that your husband loves you. And certainly I think your marriage has a chance of survival.

Let's think about some of the reasons that may make a husband critical of his wife, even though he really loves her.

In the first place, every man wants his wife to be as near perfection as can possibly be achieved, not only because he loves and is proud of her, and so wants her to appear, on every occasion, to the best possible advantage, but also he feels, consciously or subconsciously, that her perfection, or lack of it, reflects on him in the eyes of others. The more beautiful and charming she is, the more he feels others envy him as the possessor of such a desirable creature, and that sets him up on end. While if he thinks his wife does not measure up to other women in looks or personality, then he feels others look down on him and that makes him feel awful. So either way, a husband keeps trying to make his wife up to his own particular idea of what she ought to be, so that she will be the admiration of all, and he can bask in her reflected glory.

Or again, perhaps he fights a constant battle with a feeling of inferiority in himself, and so does not want to think his wife may have more charm and better looks than he has. So he picks flaws in her and makes odious comparisons with other women in order to persuade himself that she has nothing on him!

Then, too, sometimes these nagging criticisms may have a little something on their side. Perhaps the wife actually isn't making the most of her looks, and may not be taking the trouble to keep her figure, to cultivate the friends and interests that will make her an entertaining companion.

So "Much Worried Wife," before I made up my mind to divorce my husband and marry someone else, I'd like to keep one whole of an effort to see if I couldn't locate the trouble and do something about it. Instead of brooding, and feeling unappreciated and inferior, I'd ask myself if I really had been making the most of myself as a person and I'd give myself an honest answer. And if I hadn't been, I'd get busy and begin.

And if I suspected that an inferiority complex might be my husband's difficulty, I'd start a campaign of building himself up in his own eyes. I'd keep one whole of an effort to see if I couldn't locate the trouble and do something about it. Instead of brooding, and feeling unappreciated and inferior, I'd ask myself if I really had been making the most of myself as a person and I'd give myself an honest answer. And if I hadn't been, I'd get busy and begin.

Federal Criminal Procedure Reforms

SOME GRATIFYING REFORMS have been put into effect under a new code of criminal procedure established by the federal justice department. A brief report thereon is of interest.

In behalf of defendants, federal courts now may employ a summons instead of a warrant in minor cases, thereby avoiding formal arrests and possible waits in jail. Defendants may obtain change of venue where local prejudice is demonstrable. A court may subpoena witnesses for indictment defendants anywhere in the country. A court may allow taking of depositions and may stand the expenses thereof for pauper defendants. Periods for appeal are longer. Time for requesting a new trial on the basis of newly discovered evidence is extended from sixty days to two years. In the government's behalf, warrants now are issued outside the district in which the document is issued. Slippery defendants no longer may delay justice by demanding removal proceedings—if the defendants have not left the state, but merely entered another district, or if they have left the state without going more than 100 miles from the origin of the warrant. Another time-saving appears in permission to submit technical pleadings as "motions." These pleadings may be made without confusion and delay while lawyers argue judges whether the procedure should appear as motions to quash, pleas in bar or pleas in abatement.

All these things make for simplification looking toward more expeditious and more direct action, which is something that has been needed in federal court procedure for a long time.

House Builders Look Out of Rut

IT IS NOT EASY to find a silver lining in a housing shortage, but there is one faint ray of light in the present dark cloud. This is the fact that the construction industry, after relying on virtually the same materials and methods for generations, is showing signs of lifting itself out of this time-honored rut. News-releases are full of illustrations of new ideas in dwellings and, although most of them are as hard as some as an igloo or a mud hut, they are a fascinating departure from the commonplace.

There is, for instance, the Tournesol, which squats down and lays a concrete house as a hen might lay an egg, at the rate of one a day. There are steel houses, and paper-board ones; Nissen huts, and prefabricated dwellings that bolt together like a child's dollhouse. There seems to be no limit to the designer's ingenuity.

It should not be surprising to find one of these days that someone has turned out a dehydrated house that would build itself if the garden hose were turned on it. Of these various creations, the one that seems especially intriguing is the hemispherical, aluminum house. Like most of its brothers and sisters this dwelling looks a little odd. It might take a little time to get over the feeling of living in a goldfish bowl or an inverted saucer after moving into a circular house with one long window running all the way around it. But perhaps it is time people discarded the obsession that a building isn't a house unless it has four straight walls with a roof over them. At any rate, it shouldn't do any harm to give the innovators their fling. Traditionalists haven't been too successful in providing comfortable, modern houses at prices people can afford. Perhaps the extremists can turn the trick, and there is a possibility that after people have had a chance to look at their creations for a few years they will find that it is possible to become accustomed to them.

Difficult Problem Even for Experts

THE UNITED STATES will receive $650,000,000 plus interest at two per cent a year by January 1, 1946, under the British-American memorandum settling lend-lease and other wartime obligations. The total will be only a small fraction of the cost of the property involved. It is only a small fraction of its present value if the Senate committee investigating the defense program is correct in estimating the worth of the military material Britain will get at $4,700,000,000. But to judge whether the deal is good or bad is a difficult assignment even for experts. For the layman it is simply impossible. In the circumstances, the public has the alternative of deciding whether to accept the opinion of the government's negotiators, who have at least been closest to the problem, or those critics who have not had to accept responsibility in the matter. As that is the case, it is only fair to say that American representatives who dealt with the British had to consider British ability to pay at every point. They had to consider, too, such questions as the most of bringing military and naval equipment back to this country and its actual value after it had been returned.

It is worth remembering, in any event, that Uncle Sam has already received the best return he could expect from the investment he made when he shipped these goods to Britain. Billions were spent, but they paid off in victory.

There are 300 different kinds of horseshoes in shapes and sizes. None of them is perfect. The miracle is—where did he get 'em?

Just heard of a fellow setting a record eating two dozen oranges in one sitting. The miracle is—where did he get 'em?

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Brass" Inefficiencies Discourage Army Of Volunteers, Drew Pearson Declares

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, April 7.—After the last war, we let our best officers leave the army, were content to make the army a refuge for hundreds of misfits who couldn't adjust themselves in other walks of life, and settled down to complete complacency regarding the armed forces.

Usually history repeats itself. After this war, however, there is a little less complacency regarding the future—thanks to Russia. But there is almost as much do-nothingness regarding the internal organization of the army.

President Truman has now demanded that we have a big peace-time conscript army. But aside from Secretary of War Patterson's healthy board for probing cause, no steps have been taken to reorganize the army's long out-dated system of promotions, its methods of selecting officers, and, perhaps, most important of all, its system of eliminating misfits.

A thorough reorganization of the army might make it more enticing to good men and thereby eliminate conscription. Even Sen. Chan Gurney, of South Dakota, most ardent conscription enthusiast, will admit that a volunteer army is more efficient than one composed of men who are forced to serve.

Army Weak Spots
In view of President Truman's demand for a conscript army, here are some inefficiencies which worry the best men in the army and which Secretary Patterson's caste system board, as well as other War department agencies, could well afford to scrutinize.

1. There are no efficient personnel records in Washington. The adjutant general could tell you in 1944 which officers had worked as bricklayers before the war, but could not tell you who had been overseas. For instance, one officer who speaks three languages and is an expert on military intelligence was listed as a "tank commander" because the fact that he has been crippled since 1942.

2. There is no system of eliminating inefficient officers. During the war they were sometimes relegated to the ground forces inspection teams under Gen. McNair, or assigned to any general who requested them, where they were quickly promoted and sometimes got into important jobs—though totally unqualified. They knew the right people.

3. The army's system of promotion is totally inadequate. Peace-time it is based on seniority, which means that no matter how inefficient, if you keep in good health and don't offend your superiors, you will be promoted. This puts premium on initiative, brains or ability. Just the opposite. Prevailing sentiment among regular army officers is "Live and let live." "Why not get mine while the getting is easy, or 'I knew him when'."

4. The weakness of certain regular officers probably resulted in more GI gripes than anything else. Some were determined to cash in on the power and money suddenly laid at their feet. Some were unconcerned of the rights of the common man. Some, blinded by sudden authority, covered their inefficiency by building an empire in which to hide.

They hurt their fellow-officers who were doing a good job. Also hurt the entire army. Incidentally, the great majority of younger officers (those with the rank of major and below) thoroughly sympathized with GI complaints against the caste system.

Liquor for Officers Only
GIs especially boiled over against the caste system when it came to drinking. Troops on Ascension Island were furious when their Christmas mail was dumped off a plane at Natal, Brazil, to make space for 1,000 pounds of whisky ordered by a general. Just before Christmas also, a C-47 took off from Charleston, S. C., for Cuba to bring back a cargo of whisky and aviators for officers and officers' wives only. Young officers bitterly resented having to fly from Guam to Hawaii to pick up a load of Christmas whisky for Gen. James E. Parker. They thought they had enlisted for more important work. Gen. A. D. Smith, commander at the Azores, even sent a plane all the way to Newfoundland for whisky. It was consumed by staff officers only. Junior officers and GIs got none.

The same was true of Santa Maria. Gen. Smith had a system whereby each Saturday a C-47 carried him from the Santa Maria, Azores, base to Terceira for a hot bath, 150 miles away. The operation was dangerous because the only runway was temporary and the plane often had to land in a forty to fifty-mile cross-wind. Other officers stayed at Santa Maria and bathed in the ocean. For Christmas, 1944, Gen. Smith flew to California, though only two weeks before his troop commander had refused to let a soldier go home building the base at Santa Maria. Gen. Smith detailed two skilled cabinet makers to build a desk and table for his office. They spent two months at this job; probable cost $5,000.

General's Horses Come First
At Cairo, Gen. Benjamin F. Giles had special stalls built into a transport to send his horses back to the U.S.A. The space was needed for GIs who awaited transportation home. It cost the taxpayers thousands a month to maintain Giles' headquarters in Cairo, while at the same time he had other complete facilities for headquarters at Camp Hucklep eighteen miles away. Capt. Floyd Herman Rolfe, discharged army chaplain of Pomona, Calif., told how when congressmen came to visit a Pacific army base GIs were given chicken to show Congress that they were well fed. But that was the only time, according to Capt. Rolfe, GIs received chicken. On Okinawa, GIs complained because they hadn't tasted fresh meat for four weeks, but had to dig barbecue pits for their commanding officer to roast meat. He was staging a party for nurses and brother officers. In the Philippines, a United States railroad battalion, six months after the end of the war, was kept on as potential strike breakers. In case the civilian Filipino workers struck for higher pay.

A letter from a lieutenant colonel on Okinawa says: "Reserve officers and enlisted men pay no attention to caste when battles are raging. But after the war is won and we have time to think and observe these regulars, the picture is disgusting. Twenty-five years are swaggardly with authority, self-opinionated and with an assumed super-knowledge recognized only by themselves."

They do not compare favorably with energetic men out of civilian life who made good against sharp competition for years before going to war. And yet we are at the mercy of those who for years have loafed at army posts and could not earn $50 a week in the business world. Food for officers is bad enough, but enlisted men eat like dogs. Every possible effort is being made to create jobs and duties that a child could see are meaningless and nothing but an attempt to hold officers and men.

Kangaroo Precedes GIs

Maj. Gen. William Ord Ryan enlisted men when he flew a bale of hay across the Pacific to Australia for his pet kangaroo. This was during the war when air space was tight. Later he flew the kangaroo to Hawaii, where it escaped. GIs needed on other jobs had to stop work and help find it. Carpenters supposed to be building an adjunct to the military post office, where GIs wanted their mail, were taken away from that job to build a pen for the kangaroo. Lt. Col. Robert L. Dougherty, chaplain corps, delivered a sermon at Hickam field criticizing GIs for wanting to go home. Next day he flew to San Francisco, opened a new chapel. Shipment of foodstuffs from Hickam field, including macadamia nuts, was barred for GIs. They could be mailed home. But Gen. Ryan sent them home under his own signature as a general officer.

At a time when enlisted men were waiting for letters from their families by regular mail, Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead received a ham in the official ATC pouch. Incidentally, Joseph Lasker, famous American Students' Union friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, also received soap and food via the official ATC pouch when other GIs couldn't even send letters that way.

Those are some of the things which President Truman must take steps to clean up before we can build a solid peacetime army.

Capital Gets Much Less than Labor, Pettengill Shows

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Does industry pay a dollar in dividends for every dollar of wages? A poll on the West coast showed that The Man on the Street believes that capital gets more than half of what is left after all other costs are paid, and labor less than half. In fact, seventy-two per cent of the Men on the Street believe this.

Believing it, how do they feel? They feel sore at the American system. They think that is unfair. And, if true, it would be unfair. If I believed it, I would be a socialist or a communist too. I would say, "To hell with that. Take it out of their lousy profits."

Men vote as they think. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." If he thinks wrong, he will strike wrong and vote wrong.

Popular View Important

How the Man on the Street thinks is more important to business than any other thing whatsoever. The Man on the Street holds every business from the corner grocery to the giant factory, in the hollow of his hand. The Man on the Street elects governors, congressmen, presidents. As he believes, so he elects.

Well, what is the fact about this matter? Not the "bull," but the truth. After all other expenses are paid, we have, say $100 for both labor and capital, wages and dividends. The belief is that capital gets $50 or more, and labor gets $50 or less. Most people think less. That makes them bitter.

Now for the truth. I have gone to two sources, one private, the other the United States Department of Commerce. The private statistical organization is the National Industrial Conference Board. For the year 1939 it reports that of this $100 labor got $84.70 and capital got $15.30. This is nearly $6 to labor and $1 to capital. But bear in mind that nearly sixty per cent of all business companies did not make any profits whatever for capital that year.

Larger Ratio Shown

That was the figure for 1939. So I took the question up with the Department of Commerce in their "Survey of Current Business" for January, 1946. They give the division for all corporations for the year of 1944. It shows that after taking out the taxes paid to government "the ratio was almost seven to one."

That is $7 to labor and $1 to capital. This is a far cry from fifty-fifty or more than fifty to capital and less than fifty to labor. The truth is about $87.50 to labor and $12.50 to capital. Of course the ratio varies in one industry from another, but this is the United States government average for all corporate businesses.

Now is 6 to 1, or 7 to 1 a fair division? Here is Mr. Investor. He puts in, on the average, $6,000 in tools, buildings, etc., for every man employed. If the business fails he loses his dough. He takes that risk if it succeeds he gets $1, while the man who uses his machinery gets $6 or $7.

For reasons I haven't room for here, I believe Mr. Worker would shake hands with Mr. Investor on the division and say, "Fair enough, let's go to work."

Federal Criminal Procedure Reforms

SOME GRATIFYING REFORMS have been put into effect under a new code of criminal procedure established by the federal justice department. A brief report thereon is of interest.

In behalf of defendants, federal courts now may employ a summons instead of a warrant in minor cases, thereby avoiding formal arrests and possible waits in jail. Defendants may obtain change of venue where local prejudice is demonstrable. A court may subpoena witnesses for indigent defendants anywhere in the country. A court may allow taking of depositions and may stand the expenses thereof for pauper defendants. Periods for appeal are longer. Time for questioning a new trial on the basis of newly discovered evidence is extended from sixty days to two years.

In the government's behalf, warrant service now is allowed outside the district in which the document is issued. Slippery defendants no longer may delay justice by demanding removal proceedings—if the defendants have not left the state but merely entered another district; or if they have left the state without going more than 100 miles from the origin of the warrant. Another time-saving appearance in remission to submit technical pleadings as "motions." These pleadings long have wrought confusion and delay while lawyers and judges argued whether the procedure should appear as motions to quash, pleas in bar or pleas in abatement.

All these things make for simplification looking toward more expeditious and more direct action, which is something that has been needed in federal court procedure for a long time.

House Builders Look Out of Rut

IT IS NOT EASY to find a silver lining in a housing shortage, but there is one faint ray of light in the present dark cloud. This is the fact that the construction industry, after relying on virtually the same materials and methods for generations, is showing signs of lifting itself out of this time-honored rut. Newspapers are full of illustrations of new ideas in dwellings and, although most of them are as handsome as an igloo or a mud hut, they are a fascinating departure from the commonplace.

There is, for instance, the Tournesol, which squats down and lays a concrete house, as a hen might lay an egg, at the rate of one a day. There are steel houses, and paper-board ones. Nylon huts, and pre-fabricated dwellings that bolt together like a child's dollhouse. There seems to be no limit to the designers' ingenuity.

It should not be surprising to find one of these days, that someone had turned out a dehydrated house that would build itself if the garden hose were turned on it.

Of these various creations, the one that seems especially intriguing is the hemispherical aluminum house. Like most of its brothers and sisters this dwelling looks a little odd. It might be a little like a goldfish bowl or an inverted saucer, pan after moving into a circular house with one long window running all the way around it.

But perhaps it is time people discarded the obsession that a building isn't a house unless it has four straight walls with a roof over them. At any rate, it shouldn't do any harm to give the innovators their fling. Traditionalists haven't been too successful in providing comfortable, modern houses at prices people can afford. Perhaps the extremists can turn the trick and there is a possibility that after people have had a chance to look at their creations for a few years they will find that it is possible to become accustomed to them.

Difficult Problem Even for Experts

THE UNITED STATES will receive $650,000,000 plus interest at two per cent a year by January 1, 1946, under the British-American memorandum settling lend-lease and other wartime obligations. The total will be only a small fraction of the cost of the property involved. It is only a small fraction of its present value if the Senate committee investigating the program is correct in estimating the worth of the military material Britain will get at $4,700,000,000.

But to judge whether the deal is good or bad is a difficult assignment even for experts. For the layman it is simply impossible. In the circumstances, the public has the alternative of deciding whether to accept the opinion of the government's negotiators, who have at least been closest to the problem, or those critics who have not had to accept responsibility in the matter. As that is the case, it is only fair to say that American representatives who dealt with the British had to consider British ability to pay at every point. They had to consider, too, such questions as the most of bringing military and naval equipment back to this country and its actual value after it had been returned.

It is worth remembering, in any event, that Uncle Sam has already received the best return he could expect from the investment he made when he shipped these goods to Britain. Billions were spent, but they paid off in victory.

There are 300 different kinds of horseshoes in shapes and sizes. But since Dobbin has horse sense none of the shoes are of the open-toed spike heel variety.

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

"Brass" Inefficiencies Discourage Army Of Volunteers, Drew Pearson Declares

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, April 7.—After the last war, we let our best officers leave the army, were content to make the army a refuge for hundreds of misfits who couldn't adjust themselves in other walks of life, and settled down to complete complacency regarding the armed forces.

Usually history repeats itself. After this war, however, there is a little less complacency regarding the future—thanks to Russia. But there is almost as much do-nothingness regarding the internal organization of the army.

President Truman has now demanded that we have a big peacetime conscript army. But aside from Secretary of War Patterson's healthy board for probing caste, no steps have been taken to reorganize the army's long-outdated system of promotions, its methods of selecting officers, and, perhaps, most important of all, its system of eliminating misfits.

A thorough reorganization of the army might make it more enticing to good men and thereby eliminate conscription. Even Sen. Chan Gurney, of South Dakota, most ardent conscription enthusiast, will admit that a volunteer army is more efficient than one composed of men who are forced to serve.

Army Weak Spots
In view of President Truman's Army day speech, therefore, here are some inefficiencies which worry the best men in the army and which Secretary Patterson's caste system board, as well as other War department agencies, could well afford to scrutinize.

1. There are no efficient personnel records in Washington. The adjutant general could tell you in 1944 which officers had worked in 1941 which officers had worked in 1940, but could not tell who had been over-seen. For instance, one officer who speaks three languages and is an expert at military intelligence was listed as a "tank commander" despite the fact that he has been crippled since 1918.

2. There is no system of eliminating inefficient officers. During the war they were sometimes relegated to the ground forces inspection teams under Gen. McNair, or assigned to any general who requested them, where they were quickly promoted and sometimes got into important jobs—though totally unqualified. They knew the right people.

3. The army's system of promotion is totally inadequate in peacetime. It is based on seniority, which means that no matter how inefficient, if you keep in good health and don't offend your superiors, you will be promoted. This puts no premium on initiative, brains or ability. Just the opposite. Prevailing sentiment among regular army officers is "Live and let live." "Why not get mine while the getting is easy," or "I knew him when."

4. The weakness of certain regular officers probably resulted in more GI ripples than anything else. Some regulars were determined to which in one time they were quickly promoted and sometimes got into important jobs—though totally unqualified. They knew the right people.

5. They hurt their fellow-officers who were doing a good job. Also hurt the entire army. Incidentally, the great majority of younger officers (those with the rank of major and below) thoroughly sympathized with GI complaints against the caste system.

Liquor for Officers Only

GIs especially boiled over against the caste system when it came to drinking. Troops on Ascension Island were furious when their Christmas mail was dumped off a plane at Natal, Brazil, to make space for 1,000 pounds of whiskey ordered by a general. . . . Just before Christmas also, a C-47 took off from Charleston, S. C., for Cuba to bring back a cargo of whiskey and nylons for officers and officers' wives only. . . . Young officers bitterly resented having to fly from Guam to Hawaii to pick up a load of Christmas whiskey for Gen. James E. Purnell. They thought they had enlisted for more important work. . . . Gen. A. D. Smith, commander at the Azores, even sent a plane all the way to Newfoundland for whiskey. It was consumed by staff officers only. Junior officers and GIs got no more.

The same Gen. Smith had a system whereby each Saturday a C-47 carried him from the Santa Maria, Azores, base to Terceira for a hot bath, 150 miles away. The operation was dangerous because the plane often had to land in a forty to fifty-mile cross-wind. . . . Others stayed at Santa Maria and bathed in the ocean. . . . For Christmas, 1944, Gen. Smith flew to California, though only two weeks before his troop commander had refused to let a soldier go home while his sister died. . . . While building the base at Santa Maria, Gen. Smith detailed two skilled cabinet makers to build a desk and table for his office. They spent two months at this job; probable cost $5,000.

General's Horses Come First

At Cairo, Gen. Benjamin F. Giles had special vans into a transport to send his horses back to the U.S.A. The space was needed for GIs who awaited transportation home. It cost the taxpayers thousands a month to maintain Giles' headquarters in Cairo, while at the same time he had other complete facilities for headquarters at Camp Hucklebee eighteen miles away.

Capt. Floyd Herman Rolfe, discharged army chaplain of Pomona, Calif., told how when congressmen came to visit a Pacific army base, GIs were given chicken to show Congress that they were well fed. But that was the only time, according to Capt. Rolfe, GIs received chicken. . . . On Okinawa, GIs complained because they hadn't tasted fresh meat for four weeks, but had standing orders for roast meat. . . . He was staging a party for nurses and brother officers. . . . In the Philippines, a United States railroad battalion, six months after the end of the war, was kept on as potential strike breakers. In case the civilian Filipino workers struck for higher pay.

A letter from a lieutenant colonel on Okinawa says: "Reserve officers and enlisted men pay no attention to caste when battles are raging. But after the war is won and we have time to think and observe these regulars, the picture is disgusting.

Men who have done nothing for twenty-five years are now swaggering with authority, self-opinionated, and with an assumed super-knowledge recognized only by themselves. They do not compare favorably with energetic men out of civilian life who made good against sharp competition for years before going to war. And yet we are at the mercy of those who for years have loafed at army posts and could not earn $50 a week in the business world. . . . Food for officers is bad enough, but enlisted men eat like dogs. . . . Every possible effort is being made to create jobs and duties that a child could see are meaningless and nothing but an attempt to hold officers and men."

Kangaroo Precedes GIs

Maj. Gen. William Ord Ryan enlisted men when he flew a plane over the Pacific to Australia for his pet kangaroo. This was during the war when air space was tight. Later he flew the kangaroo to Hawaii, where it escaped. GIs needed on other jobs had to stop work and help find it. Carpenters supposed to be building an adjunct to the military post office, where GIs wanted their mail, were taken away from that job to build a pen for the kangaroo. . . . Lt. Col. Robert L. Dougherty, chaplain corps, delivered a sermon at Hickam field criticizing GIs for wanting to go home. . . . Next day he flew to San Francisco, opened a new chapel. . . . Shipment of foodstuffs from Hickam field, including macadamia nuts, was barred for GIs. They could not be mailed home. But Gen. Ryan sent them home under his own signature as a general officer.

At a time when enlisted men were waiting for letters from their families by regular slow mail, Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead received a ham in the official ATC pouch. . . . Incidentally, Joseph Lash, famous American Students' Union friend of Mrs. Roosevelt, also received soap and food via the official ATC pouch when other GIs couldn't even send letters that way.

Those are some of the things which President Truman must take steps to clean up, all other costs can build a solid peacetime army.

Capital Gets Much Less than Labor, Pettengill Shows

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL
Does industry pay a dollar in dividends for every dollar of wages? A poll on the West coast showed that the Man on the Street believes that capital gets more than half of what is left after all other costs are paid, and labor less than half. In fact, seventy-two per cent of the Men on the Street believe this.

Believing it, how do they feel? They feel sore at the American system. They think that is unfair. And, if true, it would be unfair. If I believed it, I would be a socialist or a communist too. I would say, "To hell with them. Take it out of their lousy profits."

Men vote as they think. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." If he thinks wrong, he will strike wrong and vote wrong.

Popular View Important

How the Man on the Street thinks is more important to business than any other thing whatsoever. The Man on the Street holds every business from the corner grocery to the giant factory, in the hollow of his hand. The Man on the Street elects governors, congressmen, presidents. As he believes, so he elects.

Well, what is the fact about this matter? Not the "bull," but the truth.

After all other expenses are paid, we have, say $100 for both labor and capital, wages and dividends. The belief is that capital gets $50 or more, and labor gets $50 or less. Most people think less. That makes them bitter.

Now for the truth. I have gone to two sources, one private, the other the United States Department of Commerce. The private statistical organization is the National Industrial Conference Board. For the year 1939 it reports that of this $100 labor got $84.70 and capital got $15.30. This is nearly $6 to labor and $1 to capital. But bear in mind that nearly sixty per cent of all business companies did not make any profits whatever for capital that year.

Larger Ratio Shown
That was the figure for 1939. So I took the question up with the department of Commerce in their "Survey of Current Business" for January, 1946. They give the division for all corporations for the year of 1944. It shows that after taking out the taxes paid to government "the ratio was almost seven to one."

Large Crowd Is Expected To See Legion Fights

Sinclair - Catanese Bout Will Feature Boxing Show at Armory Tonight

Jimmy Catanese, former Golden Glover who recently received his discharge from Uncle Sam's army, tonight is scheduled to trade punches with fast-punching Vance Sinclair in what promises to be a lively bout in the second part of the Tri-State Amateur Boxing Tournament sponsored by Port Cumberland Post, No. 13, American Legion, at the state armory.

Catanese has been working out daily at the Central YMCA for the past several weeks and is hopeful of stopping the smooth-working Sinclair who has yet to lose a bout in a Cumberland arena.

Brothers May Appear
Returned the 135-pound winner of the recent Golden Gloves tournament in Wheeling, W. Va., Sinclair holds decisions over Mike Porter, Bob Nazerod and "Bobby" Porter in Legion and Allegany Athletic Association shows here.

Sinclair was booked to meet Catanese after the latter went unchallenged in the 135-pound class in the Tri-State tournament. Randall "Skeets" Starkey, 118 pounder from Ridgeley, was also unopposed in the tournament, and will meet Rogers Shifflet, 122 pounds, of the Zan A. C.

Starkey, who made a big hit in the 118-pound novice class in the Washington Golden Gloves tournament in January, losing in the finals, has a big following. He wears the colors of the Port Cumberland Post and has yet to lose in a local ring.

Four other Zan fighters are also seeking spots in tonight's program. "Shoeshoe" Bob Porter or Jack Klosterman may be matched with Morgantown's "Irish Jim" Carroll, 126 pounds, while no opponent has yet been found for Stabile Junior Parenti, a 145 pounder.

Johnny Zan, who heads the Morgantown club, is also hopeful of placing the Gertion brothers, a pair of fast-moving featherweights, in the armory cast.

Other Bout Listed
Another non-tourney bout holding a lot of interest is the return match between Bobby Fuller and Bobby Goss, a pair of 112 pounders who staged a hammer and tongs scrap last Monday with Fuller getting the nod.

Jim Lehman, representing the South End A. C., will tangle with Marty Mull of the Legion, in the 118-pound novice title go. Both Lehman and Mull qualified for the finals by registering victories over North End Social and Athletic Club fighters last week. Lehman won a decision over Jimmy Martin and Mull flattened Roy True.

Portness will decide the 147-pound open championship, while in novice division of the same weight class, "Dick" Clay and Jim Wright will battle for the spoils of victory. Klosterman and Wright represent the Cumberland Police Boys' Club, while the other two are from the South End A. C. stable.

The other tourney match will find Don Miller, of the Police Boys, and Pat Murphy, South End A. C., tangle for 126-pound novice laurels. Murphy defeated James Betty, of the PBC, and Miller won over Lester Lee in the opening night of the tourney last week.

Practice Session Called

The Cumberland Shamrocks of the City Softball League will hold their initial workout this evening at 6 o'clock on the Allegany high field. Sponsored by the Shamrock Potato Chip Company and managed by Robert "Sparky" Chisholm, the team will be composed of a number of players who starred for the North End Merchants a few years ago. Allen Sheetz will head the Shamrock pitching staff, Chisholm said.

Eagles Defeated By Centerville In Exhibition

In a practice tilt yesterday afternoon at Centerville, Pa., the Eagles of the Interstate League took a 17 to 3 trouncing from the Centerville nine, of the Bistate league. Centerville used eighteen players and the Eagles had fifteen in their lineup.

The Centerville boys knocked the ball all over the lot and made a total of fifteen hits while committing but one error. Ten walks yielded by Eagle pitchers, helped add to their total score.

The Eagles gained a total of but seven hits and committed six errors. Their three hard-earned runs came one each in the first, second and sixth innings.

Pitchers for the Centerville team included Duckworth who gave up two hits and had four strikeouts in three innings; Bob Cook, who yielded three hits and had six strikeouts in three innings; and Mel Nee who gathered six strikeouts while giving up but two hits in two innings. Alvin Nave and Lloyd Nave caught for Centerville.

The Eagle pitchers were Ervin Elliott who was charged with four hits and six walks, and credited with two strikeouts; L. Zembower, who gave up six hits, four walks with two strikeouts, and DeRosa, who pitched the ninth inning yielded five hits and had one strikeout. Ed Drew caught for the Eagles.

Best hitting for the day went to R. Mickey of Centerville. He had two doubles and a single. P. Derringer and P. Algier were credited with one double and a single each and Bud Fisher with two singles.

A return game between the two teams is to be played in Cumberland Thursday at 5:30 p. m. Alton Nave of Centerville, said last night that any teams in this section which would like to play practice or exhibition games with the Centerville nine, should write to him, RFD No. 3, Bedford, Pa.

Ben Hogan Blows Thirty-Inch Puff And Keiser Wins
By GAYLE TALBOT
AUGUSTA, Ga., April 7 (AP)—One of the game's greatest golfers, Ben Hogan, blew a thirty-inch puff on the final green of the Augusta national course today and Herman Keiser, the pale "unknown" from Masters tournament by that single all-important stroke.

Leader all the way in the nation's finest golf event next to the open championship, Keiser sat in fear and trembling in the club house, having finished with a wobbly 74 and a total of 282 shots, while the little giant killer, Hogan, chewed away at him on the final few holes.

Playoff Was Expected
All Hogan needed on the last hole, a 425-yarder, was a par. All to wind up with a 69 and the Keiser for the lead. Around the course, as the shadows lengthened, it was conceded that Hogan could do that with one hand behind his back.

The host club was reconciled to a playoff tomorrow, and perhaps another such crowd as the estimated 7,500 which rampaged around the fairways today at $5 a head.

Playing confidently, Hogan slapped his second iron about twelve feet beyond the cup on the eighth hole. It looked like a clinch. He went boldly for a big three and the victory worth $2,500 cash. Barely the ball missed the cup and rolled past, not quite a yard. The former caddy from Port Worth tried again.

—and missed again. The pellet rolled around the hole and lay dead on the edge.

Thus Hogan, one of the biggest money winners, again failed to capture a major tournament and Keiser, who never before won first money in the seventy-odd events in which he had competed as a professional, finally came into his own. He looked as though he scarcely could believe it.

First Round Was Greatest
Keiser's four rounds over the 6,800-yard Masters' course were 69-68-71-74—282. His greatest round was the first, when a furious west wind swept the layout and the big shots unanimously failed to score. Hogan, recovering from a poor start, posted rounds of 74-70-69-70—283.

Keiser's victory was the first ever scored by an outsider in the Masters, which invited its competitors with great care. He got in the gold-plated event only on the strength of his showing in the recent winter tour, in which he was tenth money winner. He still will have to qualify for the National open at Cleveland this summer, having finished twenty-sixth in the last open at Port Worth in 1941.

Bill Would Prohibit Professional Boxing In District of Columbia
WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Legislation to ban professional boxing in the District of Columbia was introduced by Rep. Fred Bradley (R-Mich.). He said gamblers had taken "unsavory control" of the sport here.

Bradley also offered a bill to make it a felony to gamble on any sports event in the district. Violators would be subject to a fine of $5,000 or five years' imprisonment.

Boxing Schedule Includes Fights By 3 Champions

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—Three fight champions, Bob Montgomery, Ike Williams and Tony Zale, show their wares this week, although none will put his title on the line.

Two of them, Williams of Trenton, N. J., and Montgomery of Philadelphia, each owning half of the world's lightweight crown, appear in non-title bouts tomorrow.

Williams, recognized by the NBA as the ruler of the 135 pounders, takes on Eddie Gioia, rugged Philadelphia lightweight at the Philadelphia arena in preparation for his title bout with Mexico's Enrique Balonias in Los Angeles, April 20.

Montgomery, turning up for his important non-title scrap with Newark's Allie Stolz at Madison Square Garden May 17, meets George Larover of Philadelphia in New Haven. Montgomery is the New York and Pennsylvania lightweight king.

Zale of Gary, Ind., who is slated to defend his middle weight crown against New York's hard-hitting Rocky Graziano at the Yankee Stadium July 25, opposes Ira Hughes of Pittsburgh at Omaha, Neb., Friday.

Monday—at Cleveland, Harold Green, Brooklyn vs. Sammy Secret, Green, Brooklyn vs. Sammy Secret, Green, Brooklyn vs. Sammy Secret.

Tuesday—at Allentown, Pa., Gene Pinter, McAdoo, Pa., vs. Al Johnson, Washington, D. C., middleweights, 8.

Wednesday—at Memphis, Tenn., Mike Ruffa, Pittsburgh, vs. Eddie Bertolino, Galveston, Tex., 10.

Friday—at Portland, Ore., Lincoln Stanley, Oakland, Calif., vs. Fritz Zivic, Pittsburgh, welterweights, 10.

At Baltimore, Jimmy McAllister, Baltimore, vs. Filberto Osario, Cuba, featherweights, 10.

Van Buren scored eighteen touchdowns, shattering the three-year mark held by Green Bay's Don Hutson—and achieved his record in stirring fashion on the circuit's closing day.

With virtually all the Eagles' stars signed, the name of Van Buren missing from the contract list had prompted the rumor market to speculate that sc

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Thomas E. Gall
who gave his life in Germany one year
ago today—April 8, 1945.

The blow was hard, the shock severe.
We never thought the end so near.
Only those who love can tell.
The pain of passing without farewell.

Some may think we are not lonely
When at times they see us smile.
But little do they know the heartache
We suffer all the while.

Off and off our thoughts do wander
To his grave so far away.
Where they laid our dearest loved one
Just one year ago today.

Sadly missed by Mother, Wife and Son.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Thomas E. Gail
who gave his life in Germany one year
ago today—April 8, 1945.

The blow was hard, the shock severe.
We never thought the end so near.
Only those who lost can tell
The pain of passing without farewell.

Some may think we are not lonely
When at times they see us smile.
But little do they know the heartache
We suffer all the while.

Oh! and all our thoughts do wonder
To his grave so far away.
Where they laid our dearest loved one
Just one year ago today.

Ready mixed by Mother, Wife and Son

McFarland Is Believed To Be In This Section

Police and FBI Alerted and Are on Lookout for Escaped Prisoner

Cumberland police, Maryland State Police, county officials and FBI agents in this area, were alerted last night when information was received here that Earl McFarland, 24-year-old escaped prisoner was traveling toward this city on U. S. Route 40, about 9 p. m.

State Trooper Conrad notified the local State Police sub station in LaVale, that a man answering the description of the convicted slayer of an 18-year-old government worker of Chippewa Falls, Wis., had entered a road house on the West Side of Siding Hill, east of here. Trooper Conrad investigated, and the owner of the business said he was certain the man was McFarland.

The escaped slayer was reported to be driving a 1934 model black Plymouth coupe, and to have headed west toward Cumberland.

When the call was received here, all available squad and cruiser cars of city and state police, went east of the city and covered Route 40, and other possible approaches. Authorities in nearby towns were also notified of the tip.

McFarland escaped from the District of Columbia jail death row last Wednesday, with Joseph D. Medley, 44, another convicted killer. Medley was recaptured about eight hours after the escape.

The two men locked two jail guards in a cell, cut their way through a ventilator of the jail roof with a can opener, slid down a sixty-foot rope made of sheets, and escaped wearing the guards uniforms.

FBI and police in several states have received over 1,000 tips since McFarland escaped, by persons who saw or thought they saw him. Over 35,000 circulars have been scattered throughout the nation offering $300 reward for his capture or information leading to his capture. Police authorities have checked every possible lead or clue and tip.

McFarland is a veteran. He served with the marines corps during the war and was on Guadalcanal and other islands in the Pacific. He was convicted recently of the rape slaying of a young woman in Washington.

Calvin Ross Is Seriously Injured When Hit by Car

Calvin Ross, of Grantsville, a 21-year-old discharged soldier, was badly injured at 3:30 p. m. Saturday when struck by an automobile while he was crossing U. S. Route 40, in front of Ashby tavern in Grantsville.

At Memorial hospital last night, where the young man was admitted following the accident, his condition was reported unchanged. He is said to be suffering from a compound fracture of the right hip and leg. Hospital attaches said his injuries are not regarded as being of serious nature.

The State Trooper Glen D. Folk, who investigated, said the ex-serviceman was struck by the automobile driven by John Patterson, 57, of Akron, Ohio, a former resident of Frostburg. Ross was taken to the hospital by William Winterberg, also of Grantsville, he added.

According to Trooper Folk, Robert Glatfelter, of Jennings and Lawrence, Speer, of Clearington, Ohio, who were with Ross in the tavern before the accident occurred, crossed the highway first and turned around when they "heard the brakes of the car." Ross apparently walked in front of the vehicle and Patterson was unable to stop quick enough to avoid hitting him, he stated.

Trooper Folk said no charges were placed against Patterson, who is visiting in Frostburg, pending the outcome of Ross' injuries. Another witness, Albert Jones, of Grantsville, was questioned.

McDonald was also treated for a scalp laceration at city police headquarters and then lodged in city jail, pending the hearing.

Detective L. R. E. Flynn investigated the mishap. He said the Canfield man's car crashed into the parked machine of William F. Harvey, 211 Race street.

Rep. J. Glenn Beall, of the Sixth congressional district, Friday was the principal speaker at a ceremony at the suburban hospital, Bethesda, where a tree was planted in honor of William Taylor Page, author of the American Creed in a program sponsored by the DAR.

In tracing the history of Arbor day, Rep. Beall recalled that the idea originated in Switzerland in the fifteenth century and was introduced in this country in 1872 by the State of Nebraska. Maryland adopted the tree in 1874.

In dedicating the tree, Beall said it was fitting that the tree planted Friday came from the famous Wyetree, a white oak, on the Eastern Shore since Page was a native Marylander. The Wyetree is over 310 years old.

Amvets Criticize Myers G. Light For Statement

Object to His Expression That Veterans Do Not Want to Work

Officers of J. Louis Wolford Post No. 1, American Veterans of World War II, have taken issue with a statement made by Commissioner Myers G. Light, at a meeting of the major and city council Friday.

In answering a remark by a spokesman for city fireman, while discussing a proposal for an eight-hour day for firemen, Commissioner Light said, "Veterans don't want work, they want positions." Light asserted the $20 compensation for unemployed veterans is a drawback to employment.

Commissioner William J. Edwards expressed a similar view. Light also commented that several veterans had gone to work for the street department but had quit in a short time.

The statement of the Amvets, issued by C. William Spangler, vice commander, follows:

"Since Councilman Myers G. Light has now been erased from the labor class and entered the political group who is to be 'branding' veterans as loafers?"

"We are only citizens and for a city which has done nothing for veterans it would be much better that they (the mayor and council) refrain from such comments."

"The city continuously turns down projects which would aid veterans and they offer nothing as a substitute for the money they are expending. During the past several years local politicians were offering the 'keys to the city' to veterans but since cessation of hostilities veterans have realized that this was only 'flag waving.'"

"Should it be asked of a man who has suffered mental, physical and financial pain for several years to return to a city which offers him $30 a week? From this amount he must relocate in a home which is impossible to find and if he is fortunate in finding a house or apartment the rent is $40 a month."

"We should work for a 'take home pay' of $24 a week when he can collect $20 for being unemployed?"

"With these same veterans buying in the same market in which industrial workers who have just received wage increases ranging from ten cents to 18 cents an hour, the situation soon becomes apparent."

"Brother Light certainly must be well off for his line of thinking is that of an 'oldtimer'—which is the stigma that has been affixed to the City of Cumberland for years, x x"

Call for Blood Donors Is Made By Legion Post

Commander Samuel A. Graham, Port Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion, last night issued a second call, with a week for blood donors to bolster the list of givers already registered on the books of Thomas F. Conlon, at his offices in the Liberty Trust building.

In citing the need for more blood donors to serve this area, Commander Graham pointed out that the needs of the blood were sent out from Cumberland hospitals yesterday.

Men and women living in this area as well as former servicemen are being urged to register for the service. At the present time there are slightly over 100 people registered.

Former servicemen who still have their dog tags need only to call Conlon's office and give their names, addresses and blood types.

Men and women who have never had their blood typed before should go to either Memorial or Allegheny hospitals where their blood will be typed. They should then either call or go to Conlon's office to register for the service.

Commander Graham said that last week's request for donors met with some response and that two women, one from Paw Paw and the other from near Frostburg, registered.

Mortgage Burning Will Be Held by Beth Jacob Group

Obligation Is Liquidated by Congregation Ahead of Schedule

Members of the Beth Jacob congregation have announced that they will hold a mortgage burning celebration and dinner in the vestry room of the synagogue on North Centre street on May 5, one year ahead of advance plans.

The occasion will contrast vividly with three years ago when a committee of congregation members was named to forestall foreclosure on the synagogue's mortgage which amounted to $9,400.

The bank holding the mortgage co-operated with the committee's efforts by lowering the interest rate from five to three percent and by reducing its face amount to $9,000.

The committee's plans allowed four years for eventual liquidation of the mortgage obligation. The May 5 celebration will commemorate its achievement in three years.

Congregation members named to the liquidation committee were Harvey C. Wolf, former superintendent of Memorial hospital but now a resident of Baltimore; Clarence Lippel, Dr. Samuel S. Jacobson and Samuel Borsky, secretary of the congregation.

In addition to paying off the mortgage, the Beth Jacob congregation has effected many improvements to its synagogue during the last three years. The vestry room has been completely remodeled and redecorated, a new furnace has been installed, and the synagogue building has been repainted and improved.

All of these accomplishments were made possible by the liberal monetary subscriptions by congregation members and friends, according to Henry Lutz, president of the congregation.

The Beth Jacob synagogue was erected in 1923. It is an imposing structure of brick with concrete foundation. The congregation is approximately forty years old and numbers fifty members. Its spiritual leader is Rabbi Jacob Aaronson.

Other officers of the congregation, besides Lutz, are Benjamin Levin, president; Samuel Borsky, secretary; George Sepp, treasurer; Dr. S. M. Jacobson, chairman of the finance committee; Robert Fricland, chairman of the religious committee; and Samuel Yankelevitz, chairman of the building committee.

Stab Wounds Are Fatal to Former Cumberland Man

Washington authorities are holding Franklin J. Otto, 65, retired railroad baggage man, for the grand jury following the fatal stabbing Thursday of Estel Benner, 48, formerly of Cumberland.

Benner, who worked at Allegheny hospital as an orderly about a year ago, was employed at Homeopathic Hospital in Washington. Otto testified at the inquest the stabbing occurred as Benner attempted to enter Otto's apartment. He said he reached for a heavy navy sheath knife because he had alterations with Benner and he feared he would be injured. The knife had been brought back home by Otto's son who had been in the service.

"I had no thought in the world of trying to kill the man," Otto said. "I just thought I could kill him."

Mrs. Florence Benner, 48, the victim's widow, testified that she played the piano in the apartment from time to time at her husband's request because she was subject to paralytic strokes. Otto testified he had received injuries in previous encounters with Benner, which he said were prompted by the latter's "jealousy."
